“Since the beginning of the war, the Saving Lives initiative has been helping everyone who needs it the most. It was created to prevent a humanitarian catastrophe in the regions close to the front line. Hundreds of thousands of Ukrainians have already received essential items, and the medical institutions have been provided with medicines and equipment. We also help in the psychological recovery of women and children affected by the war. To overcome the new challenges of war, we’ve expanded our humanitarian mission – we’ve introduced a large-scale prosthetics and rehabilitation program for wounded veterans and civilians. After all, Ukrainians, to whom we owe our lives, deserve the best prostheses.”
